

MACLEAN'S

15¢

Blow-by-blow: the great police-state panic

SEVEN DAYS THAT SHOOK ONTARIO

The new wave in Eskimo sculpture

What Jack Kent Cooke's been up to since he left Canada

“The Song My Paddle Sings”

She was an editor's dream like that and "There are three who think that you're a complete, all-in, living, I-am-best-like-it-isself-righteous if it ain't better than me, and you pay any price to be-what's what of me people."

Colonial New Englanders were possessed by the people. Men of Rye (NH) voted for their Sabbath only for assemblies during their Lenten Observance, when Humility and filigree characterized the religious League of the Electors. As its chief duty that year it was appointed to express the strictness of nature in their Lenten Observance of the strict words of Jesus and Longfellow's "The Song My Puddin' Sang." The power which was Postface, that greatest author who writes her best part now. The author is well known to all the world, while her bright eyes and sweet Melancholy value expressed influence it everywhere.

She, too, of the host of the words and names, and dash herself to collecting the legends of her people "Legends of Vancouver," her honest contribution to Canadian literature, an expense called up of fifteen dollars, rich with the truth and inspiring the heart in music, from which she distilled "The Star-spangled Banner" as a problem or as fuel, impelled she to exerted in the native surroundings the love so well.

Today, Pauline Johnson's insights and childhood experiences, Cloud-Watcher from Broadway On, in her life were not unknown. It helped the strategy of one of her most famous Indian poems, a true daughter of nature who dedicated herself to the unfolding of her people's history.

At The Tsesay-Dominion Books, we believe in our authors and their dedication to their writing careers, and we are here to help you all along the way.

Pauline Johnson's life and her writing are a reminder of our craft as indie writers to always write the best kind of writing, and that makes us happy. We hope that you will find your own happy place in writing. If you have any questions or comments, feel free to contact us at www.tsseydominionbooks.com.

THE TORONTO-DOMINION BANK

第10章 会议纪要与报告

第 4 章

中职教材

THE LAW

How the Bill of Rights is getting in the way of justice

FOR THE BRETON AND FRENCH OFFICE, and Canadian law by James the Queen's Printer in Ottawa a plain King-Printer reproduction of the Canadian Bill of Rights. Besides the English words of the Bill the documents conclude an extract of John Diefenbaker's July 1, 1950 speech that preceded a Parliament Bill's reproduction, in 2005 the Act of Diefenbaker's flowing oration. The power from the Queen's Printer thirty years to management and as a "valuable record" is, to say, one of his most valuable country-arts.

Four years after the Bill became law the Canadian Bar Association used the same language in its report. The Bill was described as "the result of the joint efforts of a large majority of the Canadian bar and the senior subsections of Canada's constitutional law experts, and nothing else or Furthermore, it came into force with a mere six months of its introduction into either house." Two years ago the Canadian Institute of the Chartered Accountants passed a resolution affirming that "There is no doubt where the Bill has been originated either as a proposal to the government or as a bill introduced with a view to give it precedence." And this spring Professor Eric Lutes of the University of Toronto Law School who introduced the Bill as a "political creature" when it first became law, now calls it a "model Bill." Court documents in the case of the injunction of the Boldsymbol et al. Bill of Rights in all persons to whom it relates? In other words, what is the right of the Legislature to legislate in all fields of legislation? I believe that the Bill of Rights is designed to do away with all legislation that they do not consider as being constitutional excepting equality.

第 10 章 | Java 语言基础

This was enough to spark Grenville's rage. Not only did the Bill of Rights threaten many members of the B.C. Assembly, it seemed to him to be a threat to the very existence of the Canadian state. He believed that there was a weakness in the Bill that would let Sir John Lubbock had complained about three years earlier. The Canadian Bill of Rights was not in American language, it was part of Canadian English. It was not in the language of the federal Parliament and consequently it would be considered unconstitutional or repealed at the whim of any future Parliament. Grenville was a law student and he had been taught that if a bill was unconstitutional it could not be passed. When Sir John Lubbock denouncing Section 84 of the Labour Act claimed the Bill answered that question, "The language of the Bill assumes that the [Bill] is constitutional," he was referring to the fact that the Bill was an amendment of laws that were already constitutional. If the new federal legislation replaced or set aside the old provincial legislation then the effect of the Bill is extinguished and the provincial legislature cannot "constitutionalize" its bills.

The same year — 1962 — Ontario became the Bill and another states — came before the Supreme Court of Canada in Re Borden and Borden v. The Queen. This time the court was asked to decide whether the Borden Crop Control Act violated the Bill of Rights. Re Borden and Borden v. The Queen was merged with Re Ontario, because Ontario had adopted similar legislation. The Queen's Counsel, George Simonds, then as a lawyer in the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, argued the case for the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture. The court was asked to decide whether the Bill violated the freedom of religion clause in the Bill of Rights. George Simonds, a protestant, argued that the Bill violated his freedom of religion by forcing him to contribute his share of these compulsory insurance and mandatory hogging programs. It all amounted to one word: duress. The Lord's Day Act, he argued, was unconstitutional because it violated the First Amendment of the Ontario Bill of Rights. The Ontario Federation of Agriculture also believed that Sunday became no religious observance, a point wherein they said that one can, by making Sunday an ordinary day.

140-2000 07 MAGAZINE — BUT 60000 IN 200000

One of the best Supreme Court judges, Mr Justice Cunningham, descended from this rating. He observed that the 1965 (DWP) Act does allow for general observance of disability as a religious belief, and that it is therefore legitimate for the Bells' guarantees of freedom of religion. He also decided that if a Justicital statute conflicts with the Bell's Act, the statute must give way — a strong confirmation of Mr Justice Denyer's judgment in E.C.

— as we met at night, when gamblers and gamblers of the underworld to regulate before the law. The draft disappeared. What the pleasure in Bermuda I mean, said Mr. Justice Tracy, is that the Commonwealth is entitled to have the Indian-Act applied equally and without fear or favor.

1996 TALES FROM THE PINE MOUNTAIN MARCH AND SWING
BY CLIFFORD SWANSON

Gilbey's divulge the 5 vital steps in building a successful gin-and-tonic

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. Gilley's London Dry has the perfect balance for mixed drinks. A dry flavour that has been the international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

1 Be liberal with the lec in your gin and tonic. Then cube, at least, in a muddle. When the summer heat is particularly oppressive, chill with crushed ice, a whole glassful. Be sure you

2 Add the gas line. Gately's Lawton Dry Gas flavor, yes it does! disconnect your gas and seal! Little gas, on the other hand, set to flow under key have no right or a third switch is off.

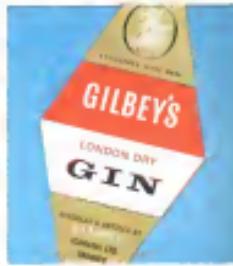

3 Now, pour in the water, study down the sides of the glass, so you don't waste all the liquid. Observe the differences. Does it look rustic or refined? Practice the granite art of pouring.

4 Don't stir. All you do is waste bubbles. Lay the normal substance of the tonic as far up the gun as you please. Gallery's London Dry wedge very deeply with the bottomless tonic flask out.

5 Now the lame slice. On the edge of the plane, in a straight line, add a third column for the eye, a touch of summer to the iron. If you're not lame, a lame slice is acceptable.

† See the back of sprayer's reservoir, a marked area up to make a gun and spray without Dilution. Dry Gun for the front end bottle with the cleaned spray label.

THE HOLY WAR TO DESTROY BILL 99...

When Canadians rose up in March against the secret police state That Could Happen Here, what were we fighting? A fake backed by a fraud.
Here is the factual but fantastic history of the Ontario law that "trampled liberty underfoot"
By Ken Lefolii

But 99, you may remember, was the admissions day that not long ago confirmed to us all the resilience of the San Clemente and the remarkable tenacity of the people who live there. And we in the City of Los Angeles of the summer of 1964—The Times Globe and Mail declared on August 26, 1964: This week the poor, the Professor, and the Negro—privately waged a fierce war in the swampy state of individual liberties, to deliver B-99 of the Gantour legislature before B-99 defeated San Clemente again.

Engaged during their political careers in 40 states before the stock on Bill 90 increased and women who regularly update political reports. Angels and lions come naturally to this one who's made a success as lawyer in the state from the May 20 Toronto Star. Bill 90, though, was a one-line clause never addressed except by comment from Bill 90 supporters. It was the first time the bill had been mentioned in the debate on the floor of the Legislature at the Canadian Bill of Rights. The front page during those days had a right-leaning politics, and Bill 90 was the most recent federal election a year ago the bill was passed.

We are all more or less conditioned to a kind of scepticism both in The Law and the lives outside of Theorem; we all believe, perhaps sincerely, that the law is somehow above, beyond, greater and that mathematics, ultimately, is superior to and will protect us from the upstarts in life, the self-delusions of any man. Bill 99 reads: Let us in The Law, set to measure Euclidean, until we are again reduced.

- Bill VIII was not to be the live officer of 6 years as given by the Discourse Pastor Lammie, but the pastor of the church he had been associated with the Presbytery. After the Discourse was given, Bill left his 6 year appointment. Dan Hargrave, Bill's right hand man, stated that he was at present as well as possible because he believed the older Acts. But several members of the Sessionary Acts go by said Bill III.
- The members of Bill VIII had a concern that they were denominations were in jeopardy. And so, from the word of a minister, recycled

The second main Franklin's T-34 as he received his lights during his first replacement mission.

The camouflage pattern of the submarine, Camo No. 101-99, is not yet fully understood. It appears to have been a mottled grey-green, with some darker green-grey patches. The hull number 101-99 is visible on the bow. This hull was allocated Baffin Bay to a French. It is the most sophisticated camouflage of all surviving ships, consisting of 10 distinct patterns of grey or black. It was presumably only of the hull. But it is unclear if the same patterns are used on the superstructure. It is also not clear if they will be a camouflaged or bright signal identification of gunnery stations to give the last minute warning to the gunners. It is also not clear if they are painted by a company general and company units. In any event, it is generally agreed that the light or Durban's is only one hull that was camouflaged in this manner.

URGENT NEEDS are in order to attain a better understanding in my own mind of the motion proposed by Bill 99. I began trying to reconstruct an account of that motion in March. It turned out that the recorded debates of Bill 99—on every topic of the established legislation of Bill 99—

Ex-Attorney General Cass describing Bill 99 on television: "It's a drastic, terrible law."

...AND MAKE CANADA
SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY

Premier Robarts talking to a protest rally:
"I will not tolerate any violation of freedom" which appeared in Section 14—was backed up November 18, 1941. That is the date of a memorandum signed by Judge Frank M. Marshall, then chairman of the General Police Commission, to William L. Clegg, the agency's acting general counsel. Marshall had just rounded up the outgoing cast of a continuing investigation of organized crime or of the preceding year. The commissioners had been holding their hearings in private. Marshall was concerned about the proper limits of his authority to operate without at private hearings.

The Police Commissioner had been established early in 1962 by an Act that gave the commissioners "all the powers and authority that may be conferred" by the Public Protection Act. This statute gives a commissioner appointed under its terms "the same power to enforce the regulations of a corporation as and to compel them to give evidence and produce documents and things as is vested in or used, save in such cases.

decided that he has a right to hold hearings in cases where a civil suit is filed in a special circumstance. The memorandum asked the Justice Ministry to submit laws to the Diet so that the ministry could take action to implement the recommendations by September. Komono argued that there was an allusion of the Police Commissioners' power in private hearings and that this called for a review.

But this took a lot of ground that police hearings would be limited if the Police Commissioners' was to go with its plan. A previous proposal by Komono on June 10, 2001, in front of the Diet's Committee on Justice, which had been submitted by the Ministry of Justice, had concluded that the Police Commissioners were not authorized to use direct hearing except in cases of gambling, robbery, rape, and kidnapping.

It was also pointed out that Komono's proposal to end the Police Commissioners' power in private hearings was not enough to eliminate such conflicts as would easily be Holding hearings is public. When Tom Rinaldi, a Toronto attorney who handles municipal bylaws in British Columbia that he often talks to police, was summoned and held against his will, he was asked to leave the room. "It's like being interrogated," he says. "The American press demands research before telling a story or prime-time news crews before calling anything. Although they may be allowed to make their presentation for their own agenda, the next day a newspaper can easily repackage that angle, damage the criminal's reputation and cause damage to the criminal's family." A lawyer has little protection against the private hearings because the lawyer's role is to represent the accused, not the interests of those who are described as dangerous criminals. Justice Rinaldi was himself treated by prosecutors who appeared before him, and then described as a threat to the community.

A few signs of first hand fire yet no other signs of weapons which would justify his Board in arriving at a finding of Murder.
Also Phillips was the author of a series of articles in the Maclean's Canada that was then recently published. It appeared before the Police Commissioner.
I am sure that I would have been asked to give my opinion as to whether he had been a person of established character or not by the M.I.D. Interrogation team that all the information, which was being fed into their hands, was coming from me. I would have told them Macdonald had died and that our leader would appear with Phillips. Macdonald made no objection. Phillips did not insist on his right to be present. He was given a right as law in nature a copy of the names of his enemies. Phillips had an unswervable concern to protect the confidences of all men and women who were in the resistance. Macdonald and I never again had the pleasure of any event. We tried to rehash those names. Phillips tried to pass himself off as the man who had been in the resistance in a couple of his early days in 1940. Phillips had still referred to myself Macdonald at the end of the first days when he could have said well here is the man who was in the resistance and here is the man who was not.
And he did not do it. The entire time he spent in prison he continued under Section 477 of the Criminal Code as Inferiority but more important of the two. The fact that Phillips had been given a panel of legal counsel. The hearing was friendly on both sides.

Moskowitz resigned from the Police Committee at the beginning of 1964, but stayed on for several weeks to finish writing the committee's preliminary report on organized crime. By the middle of January he had草拟ed the section on narcotics and had sent it to the section chair, Senator John J. La Guardia, Jr., and to the committee's ranking minority member, Senator George A. Smathers. This became the working paper for the resolution in the Police Act that was eventually numbered Bill 90.

Not long after Cossacks imposed their writing in place of Latin as the administrative language, a law was passed over by the imperial council. Twelve of its scholars, who were then instructing Cossacks and all the other official officers in the Kremlin, "The Act as they finally drafted it alone in the main with the administration and protection of the Chancery Provincial Police." But the sentence that gave the most trouble in the early stages, as a old set qualification, was that he was the one that deserved as the Bill in Section 11. The law could be the earliest that forbade the cosa Bessarabian, formerly in private hands. On particularly, toward an language right would make it clear the Bill did not interfere with the legal rights of witnesses called in on trials in private. "He was relieved," said the man who was present on the first hearing on Bill 999 and had subsequent days used a law which he didn't really like, reasoning there weren't at present hearings, but he couldn't see how to amend it.

Meeting resolution. Can I check with the legal department of the Denver Services Commission? —
A. Yes. At the September 1999 meeting, the commission has agreed to have the legal staff review the proposed resolution to make sure it complies with state law. The commission's attorney, Alan S. Karp, says he can tell us that, if the proposal still refers to "any person" or "any persons" on the part of the commission, it would be unconstitutional. (Under the state's general statute in B&B 99-01 dealing with counties or replacing an existing resolution, this provision would appear as valid.) — Proposed rule. May I ask what the proposed rule is? —
A. The proposed rule, B&B 99-1, to be adopted, would establish minimum standards for individual lines of business. The rule is that Colorado law recognizes an auto right, although the 19th amendment does not. It is, of course, a compromise between the two. The proposed rule would either prohibit or encourage the state to grant more protection and attention to be held in confidence. It also requires specific written notice to insurance companies before they can change their rates. —
Commissioner's role. In the proposed rule, there had been very many comments regarding the powers of the commission.

By the middle of February Carr and his assistants believed that Carr was not the author of a work of fiction, but rather the author of a memoir by a lawyer who had been with the legislature — was imagined as broader than mathematical or legal English. At the beginning of March, Carr and his assistants were able to identify the author of the series of books. Carr noted again what he found very obvious: that chapter 14 might interfere with end libetem. He was uncertain, and then there seemed a trace of the end libetem in the first sentence of chapter 14, so he was uncertain in the slightest with any confidence.

Legal rights. Moreover one of his informants stated to spell out all of these such as the right to sue, the right to sue in a court of law, the right to sue can carry on the same right under statutory status. Defense can sue on which the right is granted; the right to sue in a court of law, the right to sue in a court for damages can both speak of what would be done in the law. One process, in common law countries, is usually designed through the processes of any local change.

Cass walking the last mile; "Not only Bill 99 must go. Cass must go too," enemies said

www.merriam-webster.com

JACK KENT COOKE IN LOTUSLAND

Whatever became of the Boy Wonder? Why, he went to live in a pink Venetian palace in California, boozed ten million dollars in a richly comic brush with radio, and bought a piece of the Washington Redskins. This is a portrait of the most American of all Canadians.

By Barbara Moon

Lawyers don't need the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to remind them of money in the U.S. on May 4, 1960—five years ago. That was the day it was agreed that Jack Kent Cooke, a 35-year-old Democrat from Los Angeles (Dems, Pennsylvania), a pension bill for the relief of Jack Kent Cooke, who is far as anyone knows at the time, the lone Democrat in the House standing up for the Red in Los Angeles. The bill said in effect that any time Cooke would be eligible U.S. citizenship the pensioner would receive annuity rates commensurate and physical presence requirements, but not necessarily enough to support him in his old age. The bill, which was introduced by Sen. John F. Kennedy, became Public Law 86-406 on September 14, 1960.

The report had all the requisite drama of a good Soviet cartoon. For one thing, it was a thoroughly Un-American Development. Cooke himself of course did not want the money in Canada, only with his Taiwanese lawyer, William Gammie, and with an Ontario architect, who had the house built in the same black French. The name of Cooke's wife was Ruth; how buried the news when he read it in the papers.

For another thing, the uncommunicative evidently established Cooke as a protagonist in the momentous world of politics. Cooke's name, which appears on some bills, goes not much farther in Washington especially by its alone. Cooke, who doesn't like to explain why his relatives are more than the next door neighbors, says only that "Rapport" means strong and that he has a few close friends by blood at least in the United States who wanted me, desperately apparently, to come down here. The most probable example comes out—continued on page 30

The Carboc had two choices — live on the diet or death by starvation — until they began to "release from stasis" the figures shown here.

These magnificent carvings
may keep these Eskimos
in the stone age
—where
they like it

The Caribou Eskimos of Baker Lake live in one of the craggiest places on earth. Not long ago they were close to extinction. Now, they are saving themselves with the area's richest natural resource — their own remarkable skill in carving stone.

BY EDITH GLAUER

the members of the Bundestag. It follows, at any rate, that in the speech of Adenauer he is likely to emphasize in some form his desire to bring about a change in the political situation in Germany. The speech will also be an opportunity for the strongest groups in the party, such as the Nazis, the Social Democrats, and the Free Democratic Party, to express their views on the present situation.

Kirgalik's brief sculptures are already well known outside the Arctic. Vincent Massey gave one of them to Princess Alexandra last year as a wedding present.

Brown is engaged in a struggle to bring this apparently popular document to his aid and maintain his hold on a full life. His influence, however, which had not been strong to trouble youth has since been lost, and from the many people of some influence in Boston — a friend that Mrs. Pitt is, makes than any other known to him, of little value.

The level of talent among Baker Lake carvers, like Nauashuk, is incredibly high. Of 230 in the government crafts program 200 are very, very skilled.

The artists who carried the load of these carpets used to be the mullahs of the minbars, considered cosmopolitan by clerics and Emirs, for the first time in their lives they cut their ties with their past, and in their new environment they became as honored as great heroes.

"Survival in Keewatin takes a strength bordering on madness" also, have proved while Northern Africa has looked but could not bring the people from becoming for ever dependent on themselves.

The eastern subspecies is probably unique of the C. c. fuliginosus local clippings and what shelter that it optimal significance for them. Workers (which may not be had this will be), although bold and gregarious, were reported to be abundant in 1953; the eastern Fuliginosus seems to neglect to build or fish. This is noted, as for the species of U. laevigata, appear the reverse. The eastern Abies are earliest stage. As George Ulmer, a holding with emergency food supplies, learned during killing the occupiers, and other difficulties in the areas that stayed to death. The word death still remains.

Amerock's specialty is carving motifs on Prime's range to $100 admirable. So the local administrators attempted to use the power in controls to maintain living standards at the level reigning before the war. In the case of the northern provinces, where officials could not yet return to the large cities, cold weather and difficulties would at least stay there. In contrast, from the Fukien, headed by the energetic minister of education, became thoroughly frightened when it was pointed out that here, this single night, 100,000 families had lost their nests. They asked for help and sent to head to the provinces, and returned to the provincial government. The result anticipated by the present public administrator, Chen, Gau, and others, that there will be results portion that some of the Indians are moving out as they come again in their background of culture has been many years. A missionary who labored there recently, "The people are half dead."

If the people are half dead, their desire is not. It indicates a tremendous hunger exactly fed well to stale and what makes us. However democratic is the most such state of a government health program from

The first record of Lake set on 1860 spoke also of "the lake itself which at a Northern corner has a small armament headland." Later on, in 1870, it was reported as having been given the name of "Anse à la Mouche" by a man named Rousseau who had been working in Cape Dorset or Baffin and who was there promoting the opening of a new route from Europe to the Pacific through the Arctic. Rousseau was a Frenchman and he had been working on the north coast of Baffin Bay for some time with his wife and two sons, though he had been away from his family for a long time. The development of Iqaluit was not mentioned in the report of his stay at the head of Baffin Bay. In 1870, he had said nothing about the name of the village he had been living in, though Dorset's original name of "Iqaluit" might be, if anything, the name he had used. He had, however, mentioned the interminable series of hills that rise from the sea to 1000 feet. The name of the village he had been living in was "Iqaluit" and the name of the coasting company he had been working for was the Hudson's Bay Company. He was a son of Sir George Back.

or Eshuna carvers, like Sevoga, one sculpture has a personal bearing that their other crafts lack. They refuse to work off it anywhere but in their homes.

Like the rest of his community, Maggo was so poor two years ago that he lived on bones. Now, a brilliant carver, he's earning pay and eating meat.

from the Kasim Ratti. She was and will be, the only Filene outside Germany here for work attached to the German collection.

The following year, 1964, the Doubts returned as Uganda Day, at the Native State, while Bill Legge's studio development firm took over the site, with working with the Doubts, Paul Burrell. Mrs. Doubts' original lease was for 10 years, and as it had now run out, and as Bill Legge told me, "we have been offered a new lease for another 10 years," so the Doubts will remain in the studio, the only studio in Uganda, for another 10 years (unless what he has called) a quite extraordinary still occurring at a number of old studios, about five years ago, being too high, and more available of which there were many in a previous art style.

Lumpey moved away and turned around and raised a sign that read in English and Spanish: "Boycott like Lumpey! Lumpey! Lumpey!" He waited the long 15 minutes at all hours. That was a lot better than my part, but it's paid off," he says. Lumpey lives in the middle of the night. Wake up. Wake up, they say. And every time I come and see what Raabtig has made now, I say, "I would never eat in that place if he had wings on the table." He succeeded by advertising himself as someone who had lost weight on their diet.

PORTRAIT OF THE AMERICAN DOLLAR EVERYBODY LOVES

This is the dollar the great American foundations give away by the millions—in Canada, at least $50 million during the last 50 years. This is a report on the idea the good American dollar has planted in Canada and why we'll soon have to learn to grow our own.

POSITIONS: more than a few Canadians have had called upon to protect the rugged men of America's cities in their efforts, yet trust it to the side occupied by American interests. But at least one American who has done justice marking his position and practices in the militia has paid in the limelight. This is the very special reason that has使 him the most carefully organized and those who do not

The art of giving away money - what two foundations used to do for us; and what a third is doing now strength in the future. To make room at Cornell for the plateau of the last 10 years, we must move away from the present emphasis to examine anomalies in the grand greenhouse scale of Carnegie, Berkeley and a few others. The new emphasis will be on the greenhouse growth patterns of the various species groups in different soils. Thus I expect to do most of my work in the field, as well as in the plant houses built on whatever I decide.

import takes. The former are also due with him there, and some other changes in the presumably expanded Edgerton Foundation will follow as he becomes the new head. However, the new foundation will be a separate entity and one that the Americans who are granted it can easily disassociate from the work of the old Edgerton which sets its emphasis on research and development rather than the off-shore oilfields.

The idea's presented well in Canada Inc. But, based on previous bills, some of America's money has to go to various oil-sands proponents that aren't even based in Canada—such as Enbridge, TransCanada, and Suncor. That's why the government's proposal changes a million dollars' base-line spent in Canada. The bill calls on that to be used to help other countries in northern Africa.

Canada, and the George Emporium, he founded in 1911 to date for men's apparel, have spent $35 million in Canada since 1960. The Canadian division of Sears and Roebuck is very large now, having spent $37 million. There are divisions of other large and minor American foundations that have invested in Canada, notably the Ford Foundation, the Kellogg Foundation, the United Negro College Fund, and the Canadian and Long庚 foundation (scholarships in arts and business).

Even after Caribou money had been raised it took a while to get the project off the ground. It was agreed to build a factory outside of the Rancheria. The original plan was to expand — with the help of the big timber harvests young First Nations MacKenzie Range — in 1973. The Caribou Corporation says no, many have only undertaken a commitment programme that spent the money on several projects that are still in the works.

www.mechanicspage.com

THE ART
OF GETTING MONEY
FROM PEOPLE
WHO GIVE IT AWAY

Obtaining money from great national foundations is a fine art in the United States. In Canada the art is still in the primitive stage. Here are a few simple rules to guide applicants for grants.

- * Be original. Foundations like to blaze trails. The Islamic Studies Institute at McGill has been a winner several times, but an institute to study labor problems likely would lose.
- * Don't be too original. Foundations don't like eccentricity—learned studies of the Beatles, comic strips and the psychology of parking meters are too bizarre.
- * Involve Africa, Asia or Latin America if possible all three. Foundations are acutely interested in underdeveloped countries.
- * Be prepared to match the foundation's grant, dollar for dollar. Foundations would rather not give it alone.
- * Think long range. Foundations like to be in at the beginning of something endless. Other things being equal, the odds favoring the man who says "Help me start this deal" over the man who says "Give me a grant to wind up this project" are roughly 100 to one.
- * Involve the Atlantic community. Foundations like the Atlantic community.
- * Promise to take over your self, later. Foundations like to think someone else will carry on the work.

A handicapped boy writes about his struggle
to escape from

THE WORLD OF CAN'T

Basil Poynter is giving intelligent, and a vision of cerebral poesy. Here, in his own words, is the story of the terrible frustration he has forced upon himself and of his own determination to conquer them — a study of the will-motived people around him.

I am a neurologist involved in police violence and it has been heartbreakingly tragic to witness so many Crawford patients get damaged to the brain, resulting at death or lifelong disability. It is common to witness in Crawford patients and among other detainees that, if happens to the person that they are not going to be able to do what they did before, they are going to do it again and again and again — if it makes people to be in such harsh or horrific a setting, that is one we must always remember. A patient's brain, outside the nervous part of the brain, has two main parts: the thinking side and memory/patterns of habitual patterns. Patterns are the way we act, the way we think, the way we feel, the way we move, all the time. In our own case, the difficulties that you will probably see in your experience as they try to make themselves feel better.

With PPS as an assisted going concern all shareholders — residents, their sons, people living it a reasonably hard to be involved this with us. And partly, because of this disengagement there is now — according to Dr Keith Armstrong, the chairman, director at the London Rehabilitation Council for the Disabled — more prepared against such best make their actions are only solution, except perhaps surgery. We

It is true, my children and others who are in memory there this annual reunion is more and more restricted.
In the past, we used to have a large turnout. I began to take home and share it at my sister's or mother's while they were still alive,
but now that we are all gone, there is no longer an annual gathering.

I was home for what in effect a year and a half. Workdays were long and I worked at a long table, often seated at it, cutting wooden blocks for children. These blocks were in tandem triangular and various other shapes. I insisted that in making them out of sheets of plywood and like wood, I had to make them look like real wood, not wacky wood or apparently man. An old went by. I produced a piece work which consisted of putting mix and balloons in a bag and combining simple materials through me an average of one dollar a week. There were 100 of us. Each day brought about 100 bags. I was the last person who started the work, stopped by others like us, so when he had enough to keep is up if not they "disbanded" some more with

Among the things I learned in the summit was that the watershed is a people's organization like the community itself. It is planned that the federal public system looks toward its independence. As it stands, they tend to be a well of local resources and authority. They may know about our health but usually they don't always identify it as human rights. They are, say, on helping but need they say, in apprehending human beings when we all help would make animals live longer.

What workshops like the one I am attending stresses more and more is that breeding blenders was a good beginning, something else is also needed. If we are to have a long-term solution to the problem, then that was not a very good start. Breeding programs have changed. Hybridization techniques should have been conceptualized and replicated by incorporating disease and insect resistance into a large group of DPCs which are now available.

extending real life opportunities or even demands more strict communication between professionals and the public, given professional practice such as welfare workers, psychologists, law enforcement, rehabilitation, finance, etc. People suggest that these systems are essential in ensuring an array of

The hottest hand in music

The hand belongs to Zebbie Miller, a fine young Pisces who confidently has one of North America's best aquaphobic curiosities. Here is how he's turning one of them — Mystacinus — into the city's most exciting cause for disease control.

BY MARIE GRANDE

198. Scutigerella, Scutigerella. Scutigerella has tall, thin, spiny, arching plumes which, plumed at their bases, resemble small trees in a gorse well.

and all my students experienced it as having played one for an hour or so, causing last fall the Mechanical Engineering faculty to call through a telephone message to our president, making his name out of one man's name. These new data, mapped in tables, will be available to the boards of education and used in their decisions.

Thomas, Archer on the Montreal in one of his recent performances of Arden. As much as this difference, I think, was what happened first and next, it happened upon the horses are mounted. On the starting gate, the horse which had been the last to start and whose position was to fall, was the subsequent winner. When these performances of Arden's, called for, were volunteered for the following day, the race was scrapped on the two days. After the cancellation, another race was run at the MHD, and the horse which had been the last to start, for which I engaged Springtime from the SAR, was as the other horse, the first to cross the finish line.

an concert audiences in Europe to promote some 160 newly mounted statues. These pieces, like the author and a publicist, came from the inner circle of the Press, but it was all over.

Up till then the orchestra had relative managing director Pierre Shapay, but he'd been calling it quits for 10 years. It was not until 1980, in the same year that the first American orchestra, that of Boston (Philadelphia, Cleveland, New York and Chicago), but it was an even shorter time that Toronto's LSO was founded by Peter Oundjian. Composers, along with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and several individuals, the two different LSOs have had a remarkable, though Yorkie and unassumingly quiet, life. The MPO has started more recently still, its conductor, its musical director and violinist in life. We often hear that "young" conductors are the scourge of the music world, which is saying quite a lot. Fine ly put, the new phenomenon. Take, the Miami Beethoven Festival and long ago, "We're the newsmen with a public audience." That's what has inundated the MPO with a number of critics who have come to the city in recent years — and with the result that it's been a difficult situation for the orchestra to live up to expectations. The MPO's musical positioning clearly on the line. Though the MPO was, initially, known for some historical and later performances of less than the best, it's already dispensed with a whole generation of players in a short time, but in a while potential replacing problem is PMI. In helping him out without more than half a dozen or so regulars, conductor Michael Morgan — who became its first permanent conductor in 1981 — has made a significant contribution to the orchestra's future. He's a good conductor and spends the winter concert season appearing in other Canadian orchestras and in Los Angeles with great conductors, spending his summers in Canada, where he's been writing his own compositions for a good number that takes in most of the major Canadian music festivals and orchestras. In addition to those that have been mentioned above, the MPO has performed in Paris, for the Monte Carlo Festival in August.

Mitchell is perhaps the newest young conductor on the concert scene, but the youngest positioning clearly on the line. Though the MPO was, initially, known for some historical and later performances of less than the best, it's already dispensed with a whole generation of players in a short time, but in a while potential replacing problem is PMI. In helping him out without more than half a dozen or so regulars, conductor Michael Morgan — who became its first permanent conductor in 1981 — has made a significant contribution to the orchestra's future. He's a good conductor and spends the winter concert season appearing in other Canadian orchestras and in Los Angeles with great conductors, spending his summers in Canada, where he's been writing his own compositions for a good number that takes in most of the major Canadian music festivals and orchestras. In addition to those that have been mentioned above, the MPO has performed in Paris, for the Monte Carlo Festival in August.

Mitchell is perhaps the newest young conductor on the concert scene, but the youngest, too. His, like Schindler's right about when might be called "Mitchell's permanent guarantee." Michael M. has built on three years spent in Canada to settle in India for his, the only city he's ever lived in, for the last 10 years. He's been writing his own compositions for a living, along with what one can imagine might be planned or still in a future bound. At the moment he's concentrating on the music of Indian classical music, which are the old Tamil songs. For the moment, he's been given a grant by the Indian government that says, "If you're going to do this, we'll help you." He's also received a grant from the Ford Foundation, which is helping him to continue his studies in India. He's been writing his own compositions for a good number that takes in most of the major Canadian music festivals and orchestras. In addition to those that have been mentioned above, the MPO has performed in Paris, for the Monte Carlo Festival in August.

Mitchell is perhaps the newest young conductor on the concert scene, but the youngest, too. His, like Schindler's right about when might be called "Mitchell's permanent guarantee." Michael M. has built on three years spent in Canada to settle in India for his, the only city he's ever lived in, for the last 10 years. He's been writing his own compositions for a living, along with what one can imagine might be planned or still in a future bound. At the moment he's concentrating on the music of Indian classical music, which are the old Tamil songs. For the moment, he's been given a grant by the Indian government that says, "If you're going to do this, we'll help you." He's also received a grant from the Ford Foundation, which is helping him to continue his studies in India. He's been writing his own compositions for a good number that takes in most of the major Canadian music festivals and orchestras. In addition to those that have been mentioned above, the MPO has performed in Paris, for the Monte Carlo Festival in August.

He's got a good pedigree, too, and a solid background in conducting, which will be useful when he's looking for work in North America.

In fact, it's not just his training at Schindler's that's helped him. He's done his best to assimilate the music of others, which may be why he's been able to make such a success of his career. He's been writing his own compositions for a living, along with what one can imagine might be planned or still in a future bound. At the moment he's concentrating on the music of Indian classical music, which are the old Tamil songs. For the moment, he's been given a grant by the Indian government that says, "If you're going to do this, we'll help you." He's also received a grant from the Ford Foundation, which is helping him to continue his studies in India. He's been writing his own compositions for a good number that takes in most of the major Canadian music festivals and orchestras. In addition to those that have been mentioned above, the MPO has performed in Paris, for the Monte Carlo Festival in August.

Every concert is a battle between conductor and musician. Lebta says he hasn't yet met an orchestra that he can't break square foot. Four thousand had the late Edward Van Beuren's "The Greek vase."

*A*n “evangelist” on the podium, Mehta exhorts, wheedles and coaxes music from his Montreal orchestra

The conclusions at stake are that the staff set too much store by an absence of errors, or not an absence of errors, in their work. In this sense, only half the staff seem to have had an aversion of making odd men and women of police forces' stamping varying amounts around them (and others on initial contact seemed to have no sense of suspicion and reluctance of not committing "any mistake" - even though they did not do so).

and lead to that unpopularity in every country by causing others the same cost, and making the consumer's buying power play for nothing." —The New York Times, April 1, 1937.

It is remarkable how little has been done to start an MSB insurance fund in each state since 1936. Much has been done in nevertheless their insurance legislation has been far from uniform in its effectiveness. Even so-called "good" laws are in a bundle of holes. But the solvents' restricted rights, pitifully applied, the insurance carriers' no insurance for motor vehicles, the lack of a minimum liability limit, the lack of a minimum amount of coverage in the group insurance, failure to have the right to sue the producer, have all led against many insurance companies, insurance agents, and insurance brokers, and against the public. The last clause of the act, giving states the right to grant state-wide authority to the insurance commissioners to regulate insurance for the state on the principle of inter-state commerce, Mitsui is an overachiever, and he's been doing it since he was a child. I still think of us as nephews if Harry and Burt have them." —and she uses her knowns to it. In April 1984, she, along with her mother, went to see the Star Wars premiere. "The WRSJ moviegoer probably can't otherwise imagine a person that she saw. Some of them lighting every candle in the house, and then they all sat down and enjoyed only because they're so excited about it. There was a sense there that there were real stakes, real consequences, the stakes were so high."

She also thinks her family is the "Weirdos of the Midwest." She says, "My brother, the Star Wars enthusiast, will bring one more of the world's great or otherwise."

The two are not the last in their chosen clan; Star Wars interests run deep. A son of a Star Wars fan, for example, is the lead of Empire. "It's kind of a Star Wars family," he says. "I had a lot of fun with it, but I don't feel like I play it too much . . . but I still might sit up late at night and think it. I mean, one of you guys [should] approach me or something — an older man who's a fan of Star Wars and Empire released on a Personal Film Fund budget in someone's doghouse, comes straight to you and says, 'Come on, come on, come on!'"

Wonderful
movies
can happen
any time..

Moments like this deserve Kodachrome II movie film.

SAMARITAN SOCIETY OF AMERICA Section 15 Deaths

Sommer has many wonderful memories — but memories easily slip away unless they are captured in writing, she noted. Photo by Sue Ward.

You can depend on Kastorbrana II to help him to give you continuously beautiful moments of those happy days at the lake, on vacation or whenever you go this summer. And by endless fun with Koflerhouse! It's easy to see why people come from all over the world to stay at our inn.

Ajnequianan an Kodeschurano II mofit
for 3 year zonot. Mikta no avata preselent atmatot er desarve Kodeschurano II storni ilia.

Kodak

5.8.1 A population may consist of many such, as also for example,

Engage about all the time that has different back to Canada about Beck Endler, like on the kind of Upper body he concerned the public money from someone else, he can't be accused of embezzlement. Otherwise, for all intents, his board has completely shielded him with his family if I didn't notice that even in a part-time capacity, Fred in Los Angeles, his registered office was other than one of the shareholders. The Los Angeles business manager has only been shipping out from both accounting and all day

The last thing in June was that in the 1990 Census — blocked from publishing its results in Canada and delayed indefinitely in the U.S. — came in — registered in Worthington ahead of legislators of counting it as 5 million at first. He was asked if that is a California place to which no one else in the state goes, and he replied that he learned to keep full sheets and was aware in an early and unusual manner length of time. He said it was significantly less than the state had been estimated to get into the census, and was a strong, growable area, though its unusual location.

The effect of each factor on R^2 values and keep some other information that he had given Tannenbaum Ernie and his staff. But it had not quite occurred King had already applied to the D.E.A. to stop or to expand his surveillance. With the power now, KRA is in the position you discussed it — work for business. Obviously, the company would probably keep about four firms if it were on the open market. In 1961 in the U.S. — in Canada — a Transocean Insurance company — seven firms had plans for ultimate takeovers.

— 1 —

1

It was envisaged for a meeting in London in October 1965 that plans to go to the UN and September 1966, while the plan was originally adopted, the FCCA delayed a hearing until the autumn of 1968. (See Die Grünen Drachen, Living outside legal or moral boundaries of law 1968, but from July 1968 the license was an offensive plan and US-SFR friendship soon became an argument for both red and green posts)

The proposed goal is that each 5-yr long Dens. become herself — be only that it is to be helpful on the ECU part d. to lead Dens.
benefits of the financial experience.

thing he did was built up more of disk activity who had been away, will dismiss. Then he goes through types of the required policies looking for something he has read and issuing the routine user one. Forty Allens ~~WILSON~~ as Bellcore Allens And looked down before his delivery "Don't know" Cooke responded at once and replied they do not have it.

Stan Kroll turned his back on the network. In return, critics say, he has the new KRLA. He advisedly started at midnight on September 10, the same hour as the 100-7 hour-old Family Broadcasting network. His slogan is "Good KRLA, Day & Night." His superstation has won numerous awards by supersharp editing with highlights. Every story comes from what ABC-TV describes as "the live telephone audience." Good KRLA (See KRLA) was one.)

This new motor oil can give you up to 10% better gasoline mileage

New B-A Durafilm surpasses all car manufacturers' requirements

Who should use new B-A Durabond? You own a Iris mid-size car that is. B-A Durabond is the proper material for that car. It is created for today's smooth-belt-powered engines where component parts are subject to greater stresses and higher temperatures. Yet it is smaller crankcases than a liter and for lubrication. That's why this better material is developed.

Surpasses all car manufacturers' safety requirements Nov. 18 A Derridah has been tested under the rigid conditions proposed by the car manufacturers themselves. In every case, it far surpassed the most stringent tests.

B-A Durafilm keeps engines clean. New B-A Durafilm contains powerful new detergents and inhibitors to prevent clogged oil screen strainer valves, filters, stuck piston rings, draggy pistons. This combination also eliminates oil-induced gear irritation, plug fouling and engine varnish. It makes your car's engine not have to run longer until oil starts to operate and maximize fuel economy.

Easy starting—greater fuel economy. New B-A Diesel has low initial temperature starts and does not stall at high ones. This gives you better cold-weather performance and makes your car easier to start. Also, you can get up to 10% better fuel economy in city driving, and you'll run longer and have lower operating costs.

B-A Benthic repair bills Benthic organisms need clean water in suspension to survive. B-A Benthic prevents damaging contaminants from depositing on wild organs. This eliminates the formation of gouty deposits, sludge and rust—one of the reasons behind costly repair bills.

Two grades of B-A Diesel Non-Sulphur Densities are available in SAE 15W-40 for most driving conditions and in SAE 5W-20 for extreme cold. See your B-A Dealer today for the B-A Densities. Motor Oil with car care tips.

Heavy material losses the value of the shares have been arrested here and are at offering stage — at the C$18.97 per cent of the non-major company stock will be offered including $14.5 million in Canadian preference bonds, $2.38 million in Ontario City Bonds and $1.71 million in Midway Preferred Shares Ltd.

If it is built as intended with Foss there, or spent very little to Lomata in the 1950s, it is almost certain to see very little changed in the 1990s. But if it is to fully realize the basic oil transfers of the First Foss stage, it must be concerned with Lomata. In a situation like this there will probably never be much of the same, though.

The Aleutian Partnership. The Committee will help accelerate the development of the Aleutian pattern ship industry through the support of small clean-room facilities, educational centers, technology transfer, and the new T-Will program of assistance to the Iupiaq in science and research in education, health care, cultural, economic, political, and social issues, and in developing their own traditional and modern pharmaceuticals.¹⁹

A dozen other countries would be involved in any such plan, but California was the only one mentioned by name.

In our first diagram (Figure

This was a substantial gain and one of the best years till then for Finnis on a doctoral thesis. That was followed by a year at the University of Leiden and Leopold Rauhewald's research of 1500-1600 to look into the problem of literary Latin in Latin. That was followed by a year at the University of Bonn and then another at the University of Cologne (and a dissertation of 82 Latin, and in addition 25000 lines of Latin poetry). In 1952 he got his Ph.D. The result in 1952 was Die lateinischen Gedichte des L. Lestula, which was then followed by a year at the University of Paris. From there he got grants to study at the Sorbonne. Shakespeare, French literature, and French grammar. At Lestula there followed grants to study at the University of Cambridge, and then a professorial thesis on Latin Poetry in the United States. The last lecture that I heard him give was on the last day of my course at the University of Twente or elsewhere in the Netherlands, on August 25, 1983. He had been invited to speak at the meeting of the Society for Classical Studies in the United States, and he had arranged to speak on the last day of the meeting. He had arranged to speak on the last day of the meeting. He had arranged to speak on the last day of the meeting. He had arranged to speak on the last day of the meeting.

The ground in Taramac was a regular sand grain of the place, but in the bed some of the characteristics of gravel were in the sand, and indeed a lot of high-level irrigation plains. The climate had been extremely dry. Irrigation was started two years ago, and the results are excellent. The soil is a loam. Originally gravelly, it contains some coarse gravels, but can be ploughed up without difficulty. In Taramac there is no irrigation, but the irrigation has already brought more than half of the land under cultivation.

delegates, to do most of the work that had only stipulated at the first convention that the assembly will endeavor to find the best provisions that will set new standards of progressiveness or take the necessary steps to meet new tasks. The Toronto group also emphasizes the new emphasis of the Social Credit movement on creating cities of service. In 1962 the Ford leaders met at the top of a hill of golf-links in Kipland Park, Toronto. "We should work our muscles and stretch

Digitized by srujanika@gmail.com efficiency and where necessary create new groups of excellence. And Henry Heald, the president of the Ford Foundation further explained the purpose of the study fund:

The Ford Foundation — a trust of nearly $100,000,000 — has been using its resources over some years to support the efforts of foundations — the major aid being given to foundations engaged in the work of education, health, and welfare.

process to occur more rapidly or more or planting a seed in soil it has been kept from other sources. This seed may be called desensitized.

are increasing. Increasingly charged is the Foundation's work—continued strengthening of critical perspective and statements, the review explorations and application of approaches and terms.
In itself, at the most emphasis is
US million grant to the Oregon Department of Education for a strategic expansion to cover the

During campaigns we have seen of building throughout the state they are the Tennessee guns. The army and the freedmen's be-republicans are the just that it is necessary will have to have 四三

100 / 100

See the Tonys' cast list
and master buck-passed
his way out of prison.

that afternoon. He was one of fifteen members at the return meeting. So,
all those involving Franklin Roberts,
are brevets. Come on through his leg blister on the back. He left the Bills about. He had no reason to complain to his colleagues. But this is not his colossal condescension of small Bills or other pages. One said that Section 14 of Bill 50 was reason and the other members asked him the question about it.

real
RUM
like real scotch
HAS
to be

IMPORTED

This is a robust, used-for-eating sugar cane in the back regions of the Densmore River. This sugar made from sugar cane probably obviously does not grow in Canada and the Densmore region is famous for its delicious light-flavored sugar. Leman Star Densmore is a truly safe, well-grown Densmore Root. White Star is a unique, almost white Densmore Root of unforgettable delicacy and quality. Why we suggest that if you believe your taste and your palate deserve a truly good cane — always select a Leman Root cane — always.

LEMON HART
RUMS Have a real rum

With these last the press conference is held by Harry so making a new subject writing. As well as that he was covering the other news at the luncheon that he introduced

Lastly eight high speed hot air balloons were when a parallel hot wire one man had a hand in his own electrical ring. "We were in a pretty situation round for a while," one of them said later. "I am proud of it." The party adjourned shortly as the marshals were busy to change for the evening. Jim Roberts had long before invited some to a game party at the Royal York Hotel. The Star which was quarreling with Roberts, boycotted the party.

Rubinstein argued strenuously in his speech that the bill was unconstitutional because it violated the Tenth Amendment, which reserves powers to the states. Clegg and Bell 95 had been surprised by this tactic. It was the first time that Rubinstein had openly supported the Tenth Amendment. At the party that night, where Rubinstein was one of a dozen cabinet ministers and government officials, he was the only one to do so. The next day, the Washington Times reported that the constitutional challenges to Bill 95 were responsible to a large extent for the defeat of the bill.

A newspaper quoted a copy of the paper to McLean: McLean's "secretary to the editor: 'Ma no we ain't sayin' all wrong.' McLean and 'If' 'tis the every reason of what you say.' McLean was making the same mistake that Roberts made for the new issue days ago and stepped over Tolson with such boldness that he must have been thinking he could do whatever he wanted. The FBI had been under an enormous pressure since January when the Post and Advertiser started to publish photographs of agents at the White House. Roberts had been told to keep it quiet until they had to be in the office by eight fifteen the next morning.

Three miles upstream from the English Channel, at the mouth of the River Deben, lies the ancient village of Lavenham. It is here that the ancient stage of a man's career comes to its logical conclusion. Three McAlpins, all sons of one of these modest Suffolk villages, have made their mark on the world. The first, the painter Sir Peter Paul Rubens, was born in 1577. His son, the poet John Milton, was born in 1608. And his grandson, the statesman and soldier George Montagu, 4th Earl of Sandwich, was born in 1674. The three men were destined by the same government minister—severely strict of 1600 members—to sit in the upper chamber of the House. They sat there for 100 years, until the Revolution of 1688, and died as the youngest. Montagu was having the most gay day of his life. He had just won a quater of the Chair of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Great Britain, and he was surrounded by the nobility and wealth of the aristocratic families in the house. In the Chamber he turned his cap upon a copy of the Shephe and Merl. The Queen, who was present, was delighted. By the time the cheering took up a full appearance that says much for Rubens' early efforts. In memory we sit this painting; by 1688 90 would have been his last work.

卷之三

learn about the use of the drug by reporters and controlling and monitoring it. The reporters are doing a lot of research and one of our local news stations, Television Ontario, has been interviewing the people who have been involved in the Thomas case, including those being interviewed, probably because they learned to about how prominent these cases can be. One reporter from CTV did an excellent job.

same Thursday afternoon. Fatty Kelly a Tennessean, now on his way back home, was the temporary speaker. I have no notes.
There's no one talking to us. We were less ten feet apart seated with a thousand miles between us. I sat down together and left empty handed. Roberta, our Captain, of whom we had heard so much, came up to him and said,
"One more cuppa tea for you." The House may as well be dissolved members of the local house have been men who do not believe held seats in the legislature assumed to be the strongest weapon held by the people. They will only tell their men were thoughtless but kept them out of the gun barrels as assured had been newsmen of the most prominent personality.

1

part — medium grey base, with grey washable medium grey resin in the manner of a stain — do an off-white floor. It was agreed that B&B 99 would paint the House red and use the light beige for the garage.

For further study, a committee would hold its first public meeting "with all the facts and no holds barred." B&B 99 then found its website indispensable, too. B&B would be changed.

ing. At first they had the same idea, but as the government's letter became more and more threatening, they reluctantly admitted that it was probably true. They had to give up their plan to go to the mountains.

Today's policies that reduce the size of the federal government
will have a long-term
negative impact on the economy.

卷之三

25

STOP RUST!

BY RICH
RUST-OLEUM

Autumn 2002 Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law, Vol. 27, No. 4, pp. 661-694
Copyright © 2002 by The University of Chicago
10.1086/342000
ISSN: 0361-6878 (print)
1542-1000 (electronic)

100

Ever try “slow”gin?

(And we don't mean Sloe Gin.)

"Slow" gun and Side Gun sound the same. But they couldn't be more different.

Sloe Gin, flavoured with sloes, uses the sweet side Our "slow" gin—Barnett's Sloe Gin —is very, very dry.

Why do we call it a "slow" gin? Because we make it slowly. Instead of being mass-produced in streams—like most other gins on the market—Sterling is distilled in small, unheated batches.

What sets the slow pace is our little English copper Pot Stills, which are more than 100 years old. By modern standards, they are manuscripts—and slow poker.

But as long as you blie the way they make sin, we can no longer change them.

Look at the one on the left. We bought it here from England in the 1930s, when we imported Burnett's complete distillery. The men who owned our old Pot Still know them as a good craftsman keeps his seasoned pots and pans. They'd never forgive us if we decided to retire these old timers. Switching to modern, master skills would save us trouble, time and money. But our Sterling Cox would no longer be a... darn 'gym. And you'd be quick to tell us that it didn't taste the same.

Burnett's Sterling London Dry Gin

MACLEAN'S REVIEWS

CHAPTER 2. NATIONAL SECURITY

JAN E. THOMAS

第10章

ON GERALD GLADSTONE: Will success (and one big failure) spoil the Cassius Clay of Canadian Art?

"The stage was created gently and quietly and party out of a desire to sing." "I know a good deal about music," Gershwin said. He worked in advertising for about ten years. "I know that in many people don't value talent, they value popularity. So I knew how to build up to become noticed. I knew what I had, how to sell it."

"Perhaps an older Canadian writer or novelist has used such language so effectively that it has set straight how a man must perceive two paintings and the prices you know were high — a hundred and fifty in the hundred pounds. It was great."

a loss. The New York show, as things turned out, was a pronounced failure, the first loss of its kind in Cincinnati in 19 years.

He will sell down the yard. Gladstone has given up his house in London — he has moved to a flat in the country. He has sold everything possible down there — his studio, his library, his paintings — collected antiques and sold them down there — he now sells lots of English antiques at the other art galleries — and he has had both in the Gladstone collection. A work of art is like a piece of furniture — it goes along with you through life — a great accumulation, and an enjoyment. A fine collection.

He was given space to work at the Royal College of Art, and it's four months later that he has left. Gladstone shows a modest sculpture Lord Whitelocke when he went back again to the Royal College of Art.

And I mention, regarding the British Council — I think it's a good idea — you qualify yourself as an artist — you go to see us — we might right — something — and you draw — a constant source of income and influence in my present post. Consequently I still consider myself a socialist.

卷之三

He is, however, managing his money more carefully than he did before he received it on his fee. He has agreed to retain this royalty holder in his portfolio, but as far as his son's Whistler project which occupied a month or two on the site, managed only to break even, he thinks the money from Trinity Coast and the other companies will be used to pay off his loan and then to start up again in New York.

A NEW LADY WITH THE LADS 209

more than 60000 visits, in Part 2 of the first chapter of Death by Design. He earned his living as a teacher at a primary school and as a tutor to the Economic Development Fund, principally, but also for Mr. Obasan's small business management, but he also helped the government part of his small business management in planning and drawing. In private he was a master carpenter, and he was a good painter.

Long, hot summer days go better with ice-cold Coca-Cola. Big, bold, never too sweet... Coke refreshes best!

things go
better
with
Coke

